Guidewell Financial Solutions' Commitment to Serving You Without Conflicts of Interest

Guidewell Financial Solutions is committed to providing workshops, online education courses, housing and credit counseling, and other assistance to clients in a manner that avoids conflicts of interest. As a 501(c)(3) non-profit, Guidewell Financial Solutions operates independently from private interests and is prohibited from receiving or making payments for referrals to third parties. Guidewell Financial Solutions' staff are not compensated based on sales, revenue, recommendations, or other business goals; they are rewarded for helping clients succeed. Our staff are prohibited from having any financial interest (directly or indirectly) in the properties or third-party services about which they advise clients.

Guidewell Financial Solutions receives significant funding from federal and state governments to support clients' goals. Guidewell Financial Solutions also receives support from financial institutions that serve the region. This public and private funding does not, however, determine how Guidewell Financial Solutions advises clients and is not dependent on Guidewell Financial Solutions promoting those institutions. Guidewell Financial Solutions' work serves clients' individual needs, regardless of which financial companies you work with.

Guidewell Financial Solutions' funding sources often require us to share with them information about the clients we serve. Depending on the unique circumstances of the services Guidewell Financial Solutions provides you, some of your information may be disclosed to HUD or to other funders that we notify you about, and program managers may follow up with you to determine program effectiveness.

Guidewell Financial Solutions may refer clients for specialized services, such as legal, lending, or other counseling services. Guidewell Financial Solutions does not own, or have any exclusive relationship with, any of these third parties. Guidewell Financial Solutions also generally does not have any financial relationship with third parties to which Guidewell Financial Solutions may refer clients, although Guidewell Financial Solutions may in some case receive commercial reimbursement for services Guidewell Financial Solutions provides to those third parties.

Attending a Guidewell Financial Solutions workshop (or online education course) or receiving counseling services from Guidewell Financial Solutions does not mean clients must choose to receive, purchase, or utilize any other services offered by Guidewell Financial Solutions. Guidewell Financial Solutions leaves all choices up to you. If general information or referrals to any programs or assistance related to homeownership are provided to you, you are under no obligation to utilize any of those programs, services, or other assistance.
